STAEDTLER PENCILS SINCE 1662

The
MARS PENCIL WORKS J. S. STAEDTLER
 in the old chronicles

A Nurnberg black lead cutter
 in the 17th century

More than 250 years ago, on the 28th of February 1662, we find in the Nurnberg Town Chronicles the first notice of "Bleyweissteftmacher" (Pencil Makers), when a certain Friederich STAEDTLER is named for the first time. These chronicles prove therefore that the foundation of the world-renowned Nurnberg pencil industry was laid by a pencil maker of the name of STAEDTLER. This Fried. STAEDTLER was the direct ancestor of Johann Sebastian STAEDTLER who gave his name to the still flourishing firm "J. S. STAEDTLER". It can be seen from old records and chronicles that the handicraft of pencil making descended in unbroken line in the STAEDTLER family from father to son for centuries.

From this fact it is easy to understand that the STAEDTLER pencils, in whose production ancient tradition and experience are united with modern technique, enjoy an unexampled reputation for excellence of quality.

Johann Sebastian STAEDTLER who was active in the first half of the 19th century, introduced factory methods into his business, as after the guilds died out and the handicrafts fell into disuse, the old methods of pencil production no longer satisfied the demands of the times. He made an addition to the pencil industry by the invention of the colored pencils and led the firm of J. S. STAEDTLER to unforeseen success. The introduction of the world-famed MARS pencils in the year 1901 marked an epoch in the history of the firm of J. S. STAEDTLER, and paved the way for a rapid ascent, and to-day every one on the surface of the globe who uses a pencil knows the name STAEDTLER as an infallible mark of quality, betokening as it does the experience of over 250 years in the production of pencils.
